The Dexter Bakery, established in 1915, is an independently-owned small-town bakery located in the heart of downtown Dexter.

In the early 1990's Kim and Saing Yam bought the Dexter Bakery. Years later (1996) Kim Yam shares her story of surviving Cambodia's killing fields, making it to the United States, and eventually buying the Bakery from Jack Owens.

AAA Michigan Living's magazine named Dexter Bakery one of the top 5 most popular bakeries in the state in 2002.

Apple fritters are hands-down the most popular menu item according to the current owner, even when the bakery can sell 200 dozen (just in donuts) on a busy Saturday.
